JAP ATTACK ON SIBERIAN SECTOR SEEN

Advantages, If Successful, Would Offset Dangers Of Venture

VLADIVOSTOK PORT SEEN AS RICH GOAL

Nippon Fears Russian Area May Be Used to Base U. S. Bombers

LONDON, March 25.—The consensus of military opinion as spring heralds the great battles of 1942 is that the advantages to Japan of an invasion of Siberia outweigh the dangers and the attack may come soon—before the Nazis launch their drive in western Russia.

Even though Japan is deeply involved in the southern Pacific, military sources point out that the awards of success in an assault on Siberia and Vladivostok, the U. S. S. R.'s big Pacific port, are too rich for the Japanese general staff to ignore.

First and most important is Vladivostok.

In Reach of U. S. United States bombers based there would be within easy range not only of Tokyo and Yokohama but also of Nagasaki, the great Japanese naval base, which is only 655 miles by air.

On the other hand, Vladivostok could be a secondary Japanese base for attacks on Alaska.

Secondly, there is the grand strategic design of the Axis based on diversion of United Nations forces. Only the Soviet, so far, has been able to concentrate its armies on one fighting front.

This, an attack by Japan on the east ahead of a German thrust in western Russia, could have beneficial effects for the Axis, it is reached. It might draw Russian forces eastward or, at least, compel the Russians to hold some troops in reserve against the possibility of a Japanese advance beyond Siberia.

Russia's strength in Siberia is not known. The Axis claims to have identified units of the first and second Red banner armies, which were formed part of the Siberian garrison in western Russia.

Observers generally agree that Japan may be spurred to attack on the belief of her generals that the U. S. S. R. has drained at least some power from Siberia.

Small Forces Used to Date Conversely, it is pointed out, the Japanese have used relatively small forces in Malaya and Java. Author-

THREE ARE INJURED IN TWO ACCIDENTS

Three persons suffered injuries in two district traffic mishaps Tuesday, state highway patrolmen said.

Clarence E. Callahan, 27, of 890 E. State st., received a bruised left wrist and leg when his car was struck by a truck on the Millville hill, Route 14, just east of Salem, at noon yesterday.

Fred Cecil Vardaman, 45, of Akron, operator of the truck, told the patrol that the truck jack-knifed after the brakes locked as he descended the hill.

A collision at the junction of Routes 7 and 14, east of Columbiana, at 7:20 p. m., involved cars driven by John Victor, 35, of Youngstown, and Dorence Smith, 26, of Leetonia, the patrol reported.

Smith was unhurt but Victor received a side injury and lacerated scalp. A passenger in his car, Edward Lightford, 27, of Youngstown, reported a sprained back.

ARMY 'ACTIVATES' THREE DIVISIONS

Forms Streamlined Successors to Outfits Famous in 1918

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The army brought three additional divisions into being today, the vanguard of the American war machine being put together for the "Victory year" of 1943.

Streamlined successors to outfits which made history in 1918 in France, the units were the first of 32 infantry divisions to be added this year as a part of the army's initial stage of expansion to 3,600,000 men.

Ranks Filling Up At camps in the south where the commanders, officers and picked non-commissioned officers already were on hand to start intensive training expected to last a year, the ranks started filling with men only a few days out of civil life. They were taken directly from reception centers to speed the process of multiplying the nation's armed strength.

The 7th division, known as the "Metropolitan division" in the first World war because its members came from New York City and its environs, is being assembled and trained at Fort Jackson, S. C., under Major General Robert L. Eichelberger, former commandant of the military academy.

The 82nd, forming at Camp Claiborne, La., is commanded by Major General Omar N. Bradley. The "All-American division" of 1918, it was to history Sergeant Alvin C. York who won the congressional medal of honor as the captor of 132 German prisoners.

The 90th, known as the "Alamo division" because its ranks were filled in 1918 by Texans and Oklahomans, is being set up at Camp Barkley, Texas, under command of Major General Henry Terrell, Jr.

Ordered "Activated" Each has continued a paper existence as a member of the army's organized reserves since demobilization two decades ago. The three were ordered "activated" by President Roosevelt on February 6 and orders since have gone out to re-create an additional three such divisions by June 15.

The remainder of the 32 additional infantry divisions, along with 25 new armored divisions and various other units, are to be added at a quickened pace beginning in early summer.

Under the war department program, each of the additional infantry divisions will be so-called triangular divisions of some 15,000 men, of whom approximately 13,000 will be obtained from the draft. Most of the units will be fully motorized.

So Moscow Pictures German Slaughter in Attacks by Russians

CLAIM 80,000 TOLL SINCE FEBRUARY 6

Hitler Headquarters Still Acknowledges Defensive Tactics

(By Associated Press) Adolf Hitler's invasion armies, reported newly reinforced by 600,000 troops, were pictured in Soviet dispatches as "going through a meat grinder" in opposing Russian attacks which have killed 80,000 Germans since Feb. 6.

Nazi casualties were cited as follows: Central (Moscow) front—40,000 killed Feb. 6-March 5.

Leningrad front—16,000 killed March 9-22.

Northwest (Kalinin) front—14,000 killed Feb. 22-March 10.

South and southwest fronts—10,000 killed March 7-12.

Hitler Still On Defense

Hitler's field headquarters against stressed defensive actions, acknowledging strong new Russian attacks on the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea, in the Donets river basin of the Ukraine, and on the northwest front.

The high command said Nazi troops inflicted heavy losses on Russian forces east of Kharkov, the Soviet "Pittsburgh," 400 miles below Moscow.

Still no hint was forthcoming that Hitler had launched or was about to begin his heralded spring offensive.

Russian front-line dispatches said violent battles were developing in Smolensk province, west of Moscow, with Red Army troops recapturing 12 "districts"—similar to United States counties—and challenging the Germans in 10 others.

Penetrate Taganrog

On the Ukraine front, Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's scout troops were reported to have penetrated Taganrog, Nazi-held port of the Sea of Azov, exchanged fire with the garrison and tossed grenades into the barracks before retiring.

Soviet guerrilla fighters were credited with killing 4,257 Germans near Orel, key German base 200 miles south of Moscow.

In aerial warfare, Premier Mussolini's high command said British planes bombed Athens, the Axis-occupied capital of conquered Greece, destroying suburban houses and killing one civilian.

German bombers attacked Portland and Weymouth, on the English south coast, and raided the Soviet Arctic supply port of Murmansk.

In North Africa, British headquarters reported that swirling dust storms over the whole front restricted activity in the Libyan desert campaign.

LABOR DROPS DOUBLE TIME

House, Despite this, Presses For Suspension of 40-Hour Week

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, March 25.—The CIO and AFL promised readiness to modify their overtime pay scales today in response to administration efforts, but despite this a house drive pressed forward for suspending the 40-hour-week in war industries.

The agitation for a longer work-week in arms plants continued unabated even though President Roosevelt reiterated his opposition to changing the 40-hour week.

The way events were moving on the labor-production controversy led many on Capitol Hill to believe that a definite showdown was ahead, perhaps involving some sort of a compromise.

Suggest 48-Hour Week

One authoritative source disclosed that the house naval committee was studying legislation which would put only war industries on a standard 48-hour-week, with a bonus-incentive plan to spur production. The double purpose of the bill would be the reduction of labor costs on arms contracts and the recapture of all war order profits above six percent.

Committee discussion of this bill followed the action of the CIO and AFL in offering to forego some of the extra pay now provided for in existing contracts.

The CIO's executive board recommended to affiliated unions last night that they waive overtime pay for Saturday, Sunday and holiday work when such work is performed within a 40-hour week. However, overtime rates would continue in effect for work over and above the 40-hour limit.

Green Concurs

President William Green of the AFL likewise announced that his union had given the government assurance that "it will waive double-time payment for Sunday and holiday work in all war industries for the duration."

The CIO chief, Philip Murray, said that the action was at the behest of President Roosevelt and Donald M. Nelson, war production board chief, but Green claimed that AFL unions had adopted such a policy more than a year ago.

Double time for Sundays happened to be one of the issues in the case involving the International Harvester company which was called for a hearing today before the full war labor board. Both CIO and AFL unions have joined in presenting demands on the subject, but in view of the announcements last night the two unions were expected to withdraw their double time claims.

The latest legislative effort involving the labor and war production question was still in the tentative drafting stage.

PLANT TO REDUCE ITS WAR PROFITS

Will Retain Six Percent; Officials' Salaries Are Reduced

(By Associated Press) CLEVELAND, March 25.—Jack & Heintz, Inc., aircraft parts producer accused in a congressional hearing of making excess war profits, today cut its profits to six per cent and slashed executives' incomes, but continued its policy of plant-wide bonuses and free lunches for workers.

Outlines Future Policy

He gave this outline of future policy for the concern, which has about $58,000,000 in war contracts for airplane motor starters and automatic pilots:

PROFITS—All profits on present and future contracts will be limited voluntarily to six per cent for the duration of the war, any excesses to be returned to the army and navy at the end of each year.

SALARIES—Jack, his son William Russell Jack and Ralph M. Heintz, vice presidents, will receive $15,000 a year each for the duration, instead of $100,000, and will receive no bonuses. They are the sole stockholders. No member of the organization will receive more than $25,000 a year. Miss Adelaide Bowman, Jack's secretary, will receive $6,000 a year. Testimony at the hearing showed Jack's salary and bonuses totaled $145,845 last year, and Miss Bowman received $39,356 in salary and bonus last year.

Continue Bonuses

WORKERS' BONUSES & BENEFITS—The company will continue its present policy "of dealing with our associates—as all employees are termed. Last Christmas the firm gave each of 800 employees a $600 bonus, a turkey and a wrist watch. Free lunches, free dental care, recorded music during work, a monthly banquet and other items have marked the policy. Employees "will continue to get 15 per cent of the company's earnings," divided equally among them as Christmas bonuses.

PRICES—Referring to motor starters, Jack said the firm voluntarily reduced prices last Jan. 19 to the army, by 28 per cent under previous contract prices, and on navy contracts, "10 per cent of our production," prices on all future business have been cut about 25 per cent. He promised further cuts.

Jack will describe his Washington trip to the "associates" at the next monthly banquet, Saturday night.

BLAST MARCUS, WAKE ISLANDS FROM SEA, AIR

Patrol Boats, Seaplanes Wrecked; Shore Batteries Silenced

SOME JAPANESE PRISONERS TAKEN

Twin Attacks Throw Scare Into Japan; Tokyo Is Blacked Out

(By Associated Press) PEARL HARBOR, March (Delayed)—Two sudden, savage and "highly successful" assaults on Wake and Marcus islands—the latter only 950 miles from Tokyo—were disclosed in first-hand accounts by navy spokesmen today. Several Japanese were taken prisoner, and coastal and shore installations at both outposts were battered for hours from the sea and air.

The attack on Wake was on Feb. 24—two months after a small garrison of U. S. marines was overwhelmed to end a 14-day stand which remains one of the highlights of heroism of this war.

The raid on Marcus was by flare-light in the early hours of March 4. Two planes lost.

No United States ships were damaged. Two planes were lost, one in each attack. Anti-aircraft fire—the only major opposition encountered—downed both of them.

The prisoners were picked up at Wake island in derelict-laden waters after two Japanese patrol boats were bombed, shelled and sunk. At Wake, too, the entire aerial strength found was destroyed—three four-engine seaplanes.

Shore batteries were silenced, fuel barges and dredges were sunk, fuel storages, underground hangars and magazines were demolished.

At Marcus—a major stepping stone from Japan to many mandated islands in the Pacific—the destruction included a radio station, hangars, storages, ammunition and fuel. A nearly-completed air base was bombed and damaged. No planes were found.

An official navy spokesman described the attack as "swift and almost completed."

His cryptic remark: "Marcus was attacked by aircraft bombardment so early in the day that flare illumination was used. An airbase in advanced stages of construction was found on the island. No enemy aircraft was found present, and no enemy opposition other than heavy anti-aircraft fire was encountered."

"The attack accounted for the destruction of hangars, storage houses, ammunition, fuel and gasoline storages, a radio station, and considerable damage to the nearly-completed air field."

"One of our planes was shot down by anti-aircraft fire."

Valuable Base Navy spokesmen stressed that Marcus was potentially a highly-valuable base, for aircraft as well as for surface patrol units operating in the defense of Japan itself.

The island roughly is 1,000 miles northwest of Wake and 3,000 miles from Pearl Harbor, and is in the same general area as the island of

NO DISAGREEMENT—WHY BICKER?

One of the things war is supposed to do is stimulate unity. Everybody works toward the same goal. Petty differences are forgotten in a common effort.

This can happen between labor and management in the United States. It can happen between management and management, and it can happen between labor and labor. Petty differences can be forgotten.

It has happened already. The automobile industry has shaken the throat-cutting that has characterized its operations and is pooling its resources for war production.

In local communities, a lot of the free-hand knife-fighting formerly carried on by rival labor organizations was outlawed for the duration—before, not after, word was passed down from above that the fight between AFL and CIO was to be cooled down for the sake of the war effort.

All over this country, citizens are getting their heads together and bucking down for the long pull. Only one thing can interfere.

There must be a curb on bickering. The animosities and prejudices and grudges that always are good for one more dirty dig must be put away till there's nothing more important to do than agitate them.

This is not the time to swap insults and kicks in the shins. This is the time to say to the other fellow, "Brother, what we think of each other has no bearing on what some fellows abroad think of both of us. When we get through beating their ears off, we can go to work on each other, if we still feel that way about it."

In the last few days, during discussion of certain issues growing out of the rising resentment of a diatribe attitude on the 40-hour week in wartime, there have been some things said that had better been left unsaid. Yet, even on this hot and ticklish question there is no fundamental disagreement. All parties concerned have a common interest in war production.

It is a good time to remember that nothing pleases the enemy so much as evidence that Americans may fall to bickering when they should be producing. This is an occasion for unity; this is war. Bickering may be a sacred privilege of Americans, but during wartime it is just one more right to be suspended voluntarily for the common welfare.

RUSSIANS STILL MOVING WEST

The daily news belies the "safe" assumption that when Germany turns on Russia sometime this spring there will be automatically another rapid advance back over the ground lost during the winter. The Russians still are moving west. They have the benefit of knowing that the Germans can be beaten. They have equipment. They no longer have the disadvantage of fighting on the defensive, which was theirs by virtue of Germany's attack early last summer.

If it may be assumed that Germany is stronger than it was a year ago, that Adolf Hitler can map a better campaign than his staff of a year ago, that Russia has been weakened by the war in greater proportion than its opponent, then the coming spring offensive by the Nazis probably will do everything it is supposed to do. Meanwhile, it must be questioned whether or not some of the great expectations are not the result of one of the peculiar psychological circumstances of the war.

By striking first and by regulating their channels of information, the Germans have managed to create the impression that they are the favorites in every given contest; that when they are whipped it is an upset; that when they are successful they "planned it that way." The British have disproved this in the air, the Russians have disproved it on the ground, the navies of the United Nations are disproving it on the high seas. But the notion dies hard.

DECISION FOR THE MEN ON BATAAN

The citizens of the United States who are safe at home will leave the decision about surrendering to Japan to the men on Bataan. They also will give odds that the men on Bataan will not surrender.

They may be defeated; defeat always has been a probability of their last-ditch defense. They may be virtually exterminated; that also has been one of the probabilities of their situation.

But their countrymen are betting they will not surrender. The Americans and Filipinos on Bataan can have no illusions about their fate if they surrender. Nor can their countrymen have any illusions.

It is pointed out that in the Far Eastern war, the occidental mind has no means of comprehending the behavior of the oriental mind, governed by a different code of ethics. The reverse also is true. The Japanese, it is safe to guess, won't be able to understand why the honorable gentlemen on Bataan, with a chance to surrender, are being so boorish as to want to fight it out.

SOUL-SEARCHING

Besides leaving a great many desk workers with a conviction that they are little better than useless, the occupational questionnaire to be filled out by selective service registrants has another disadvantage. It calls for more soul-searching than is going to be comfortable.

The government wants to know the registrant's opinion about what type of job he is best fitted to do—which, the questionnaire points out, is not necessarily the job he is doing. Then it wants to know what his second choice of jobs would be.

If the government doesn't know this already, it is going to get some remarkable answers to a question like that. The type of job any given man is best fitted to do is to be boss of whatever organization he is working for. He is rarely, however, doing that job. His second choice would be to become the man who gives orders to his boss; it would be first, except that he has had fewer opportunities to study the notorious weaknesses of the fellow above the boss. The government will have to make allowances for a lot of imagination when it begins talking about a man and his job.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, March 26

THE SIDEREAL operations for this period may be read as perplexing if not obscure in the interpretation of definite auguries. The predominant factor is an encouraging one for attacking major objectives, with originality and perhaps surprising tactics, backed up by practical and tested systems or techniques. But these must have the support of influential personages whose cooperation may be secured by diplomatic, secret, subtle or shrewdly organized strategies.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which subtle undercurrents may be the source of success and surprising progress and prosperity. There are certain astral angles of the obscure, elusive or inspirational which may be at work beneath the surface to bring this about, but supported by individual creative ability and ingenuity of a thoroughly practical and demonstrable character. the skin on many different parts of the body. A condition similar to the skin of athlete's foot may break out on the skin of the hands, between the fingers; splintering and scurfiness of the fingernails and toenails may be due to this cause.

Many people carry for years, practically for life, red itchy skin of the arm pits, and besides, there is the circular, sharply demarcated eruption in the groin known as double itch, both forms of ringworm.

Even the books on dermatology do not emphasize that the itching of the ear canal which is so annoying to a great many people, is in 95 per cent of cases due to this form of infection, and that next to itching around the skin of the rectum, the disease known as pruritus ani, is of the same class.

"Ringworm" scientifically is a vegetable mold called the hyphomycetes or trichophyton. When scraped off the skin and seen under the microscope, this fungus looks like a lacy network of fine threads of spun glass. There are literally hundreds of varieties of this trichophyton.

Many Species

I have been sending a book by a dermatologist which describes over 800 species. They are all of the same family, but differ slightly in their chemical reactions, which makes for such a variety of manifestations on the skin and also difficulty in treatment, because on account of variability of chemical reactions, an antiseptic which will destroy one kind has no effect on another.

Most cases of chronically itching ear canals due to ringworm infection can be cured by the application of nearly any solution that has alcohol in it. My otologist tells me that this has to be applied by someone else—that I cannot do it myself even though I am a doctor because whoever does it has to see the patches of skin involvement and make the application directly to them.

Pruritis ani is in all cases complicated and due to a number of causes such as overweight, high starch diet, fissures, hemorrhoids and psychological factors—tense influences. But in spite of that, the statement of modern research that 99 per cent of cases are associated with trichophyton fungus infection and 99 per cent of the severity is due not to fissures or hemorrhoids as was the older teaching, but to the activity of the fungus, is generally accepted as true.

The condition of the skin—the moist, warm soil—is ideal for fungus growth. In treatment, all these factors must be taken into account, but with especial emphasis on eradication of the trichophyton infection, the favorite application being Castellani's carbolic fuchsin paint.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. W.: Please give me the cause, symptoms and cure of Buerger's disease.

Answer: Buerger's disease is due to an occlusion of the arteries of the leg. It has been ascribed to the excessive use of tobacco. The symptoms are pain and poor circulation in the skin of the feet and toes. There is no certain cure, but a great deal can be done by giving up tobacco and the use of postural exercises in which the feet are alternately elevated and lowered.

M. F. B.: Would a spastic colon or spastic constipation cause pain in the lower abdomen? If so, what would you advise for relief?

Answer: A spastic colon will cause pain in the lower abdomen. For relief I would advise a bland diet without roughage and complete abstinence from cathartics and enemas.

"HUTCH" OF THE R.A.F. by PETER MUIR

CHAPTER TWENTY

"My first idea," David continued, "was to float down the Odett in a rowboat. Undoubtedly, our one hope is to return to England by the sea; we must get to the shore first. I have changed my idea about the Odett because it is necessary to go to Concarneau where I have a friend, old Yves, on whose tiny boat I have often sailed. If we can locate him he will help us. I am sure."

"Then why not drift down the river?" Pierre asked.

David reached for the pencil stub that was being used for the imaginary scoring. "For two reasons. First, when our way of escape has been discovered that is the place they will search. And second," he drew a rough map without using names on the face of a playing card—"if we go down the Odett to its mouth we will have to either follow the shorelines to Concarneau, or cross over this stretch of open bay." He used the map and pencil to show what he meant. "Both are bad places in which to be seen until we have been able to obtain Breton fishermen's clothes."

"Eh bien, mon ami, you speak well. I shall lead you from our prison. After that it is your party. Our direction is about southeast. Is it not?"

"Yes," Hutch said.

"And I think it is better that we meet outside the chateau and go together. Eight arms are stronger than two, just in case—" Pierre's expressive hands made movements to show that he meant in case there was a fight.

All four were in bed, fully dressed, with the blankets pulled around their necks and feigning sleep when the guard passed to see that lights were out.

"Ten o'clock," Pierre whispered across the darkness. "Two more hours. Sleep if you can. I never sleep and shall awaken you. Never once have I missed the changing of the guard. You hear them click their silly heels, and I could set my watch by them—if I had a watch."

But not an eye was closed in spite of the fact that the time seemed interminable. Every so often the guard passed to see that everything was in order, and from the heavy breathing that came from the room (assumed for his benefit) he would have sworn that his changes were enjoying deep slumber. Once he opened the door and played his electric torch on each of the four cots, and Pierre moved in his bed and muttered something, as if annoyed and half awakened by the intrusion. The next time the soldier passed, however, he was lying on his back, mouth open, and snoring in the most natural manner. So natural that Hutch thought he was really sleeping.

In thinking this Hutch was wrong. He heard the clicking of steel heels which announced midnight and the changing of the guard, and almost before the door had closed on the retiring watchers Pierre was crouching beside his bed and whispering into his ear. "Now, mon ami."

"Hush! We better wait until this new fellow makes his first round!"

"No," Pierre whispered, speaking very fast. "As he is alone he makes no rounds. He is afraid to turn his back on the other rooms along the corridor. He does not move unless he suspects something, and then, I warn you, he comes in stocking feet like a cat. I know. I have seen him. Listen. You and your friend stand down by the door while Henri lets me down. If the dirty Boche comes kill him, but without noise. It is too late to act gently. Alone!"

Hutch and Rusty could hear the gurgling of the stream below as Henri, using his great strength, swung open the stone. They stood by the door, waiting with bated breath and thumping hearts. Waiting and waiting. Minutes seemed like hours, and the only sound was the music from the running brook.

There was no telling how long they waited, standing silent in the tiny blackness, ready to pounce on the soldier if he interrupted them. It must have been hours, weeks, although Hutch could not see the Frenchman he was sure that he hesitated here to shrug his shoulders—"that is another matter. The current will help us pass. It also exits by a round pipe. The water practically fills this pipe, and once inside there is no return. What is at the other end, or how long it is, I do not know. For one, I shall take the chance."

"And I?"

"And I?"

Pierre chuckled. "The 'aves' have it. In which case, hold your breath and pray. I shall go first. If there is no exit I shall come back and warn you—perhaps. If I am not back by the time you count a hundred, do not wait. I shall have gotten through—or else—" He attached a blanket around the open stone so that each man could slide down in turn. "And now, my friends, I shall meet you under the open stars—maybe!"

There was the muffled sound of a splash as Pierre hit the water. "Au revoir," he called up in a low tone, after which only the sound of the stream came to those listening above.

Hutch came, neither slowly nor hurriedly, to one hundred. "Go ahead, Martin," he said. Henri murmured, explaining that he was the strongest he should be the last, to protect, as he explained it, the flank. This was good military tactic, but Hutch was now the superior officer and insisted. The Frenchman had been in prison for months, had discovered the means of getting away, and it was his privilege to go first. This passed through his mind, but he did not lose time with lengthy explanations. "I am now in command," he said. "Go ahead. We will count to fifty

OUR READERS

CLEAN LIVING PLEA

Editor, The News: A little band of earnest souls visited our city Sabbath evening, good cross section of Salem filled our High school auditorium. The meeting was a demonstration of what the Christian layman can do with his stewardship. R. G. LeTourneau's life has been miraculously spared to the world because God knew he could depend upon him. From the rapt attention the large audience gave him, it was evident a profound impression was made.

The speaker, attacked, humbly but courageously the paramount evils of our day, viz. lack of faith and trust in Christ, holding back our money and service that belongs to the Lord; being silent when all around us vice of all kinds is tolerated. We were told we need not have this condition if the American people would rise in their might and say: Liquor, cigarettes will weaken our efficiency, we will not have it.

After such a stirring plea, can we of Salem be indifferent to our community's needs? Shall we sit silently by while our churches are being emptied and our night clubs and movie houses are filled?

Barnesville, Ohio, had a clean up campaign recently in which they were victorious. I have been told that one minister of the town was the moving spirit of the campaign. Ministers are logical leaders in a community, laymen are equally responsible in righteous undertaking. With Christ as our personal Saviour and leader, victories beyond our comprehension will be ours.

So we would appeal to the large company of Salem dwellers who were present at that thrilling occasion, to cast off the spell which bound us there, but rather to welcome and help to bring about the "Heavenly revival" that was prayed might come.

CHRISTIAN CITIZEN

WANTS ACTION

Editor, The News: What is wrong with our emergency set up in town? Not one thing ready should a calamity come. Better have an emergency hospital, ready now than to have it said Salem was asleep when she was needed.

Hospital facilities might be needed for our own ships or even a railroad accident. Understand Canfield has her supplies all in one room. Salem should be more alert than we have been.

What about our schools? Are they being drilled? Wake up people and demand action.

U. S. FORCE BLASTS JAPANESE BASES

Patrol Boats, Seaplanes Wrecked; Shore Batter- ies Silenced

Guam which the Japanese seized last December. In one sense, Marcus is Japan's Hawaii as a strategic outpost for the mainland.

It is no secret that the Marcus attack was regarded so significantly in Tokyo that lights of that city were blacked out for several nights afterwards.

The raids were conducted by task forces of the U. S. Pacific fleet—aircraft, carriers, cruisers and destroyers—which have been on the move constantly in carrying out the promise of high naval officials that "the sea lanes will be kept open and the battle carried to Japan's front door."

So far as is known, Marcus is the "loosest any United States forces have approached Japan on an offensive mission with the exception of American submarines which have all but moored at Nippon wharves."

On March 4 Halsey's forces which had hit Wake island a week earlier struck at Marcus island.

The attack, by air, was executed just before dawn and the navy bombers which roared over the Japanese base dropped flares to illuminate their objectives. "No enemy aircraft or ships were present," the communiqué said.

Hangars Damaged

"Heavy anti-aircraft fire was encountered while our planes dropped 50 bombs on the small island, resulting in considerable damage to hangars, fuel and ammunition stores, radio installations and aircraft runways. Our loss in this engagement was one aircraft."

The navy did not specify what sort of radio installation was believed to have been in operation on Marcus island but there was speculation that it had been a radio-later device for detecting the approach of American ships or planes toward the very heart of the Japanese dominated area in the western Pacific.

Naval authorities noted that the great value of Wake and Marcus islands to the Japanese has been in extending the effective patrol range of their aircraft, particularly.

SUITS MORE IMPORTANT THAN EVER THIS SPRING

This spring suits are more important than ever before in the fashion picture. They do double duty. With tailored blouses they are perfect for the serious, active part of the day; but they can be transformed for informal evenings and that "dress-up" mood by frilly dummies or gaily printed blouses. Weaves are standardized by fabric manufacturers in their efforts to meet the needs of the government and civilian markets. Twills come in this category. Gabardine, a member of the twill family, is used for the suit shown left. It is well tailored, with a hip-length jacket, and an easy skirt with kick pleat, and is crease resistant. The three-piece suit, center, is made of a rough nubbed linen-type weave of spun rayon. It consists of a jacket without collar or lapels, a skirt, and a blouse in a tropical print which carries out the suit color and texture. The one-button suit, right, is made of raised twill woven from spun rayon and wool in a 60-40 mixture. A Milan cloche hat, red calf bag and enamel and metal label pin complete the costume.

STARS OPEN DRIVE FOR PINS AT ABC TOURNEY TODAY

900 Teams Reserve Places For 1943 Classic In Buffalo, N. Y.

COLUMBUS, March 25.—The Los Angeles delegation, which has been passing out wine in its campaign for the American Bowling Congress 1944 tournament, will give the boys a show on the alleys tonight.

It will be an exhibition of kegling prowess starring Harold Lloyd, the movie producer-comedian, and Max Stein, captain of the Warner Brothers five-man team.

ABC officials don't know what to expect from Lloyd. Stein, however, holds the ABC all-events record of 2070, and will be trying to better it.

A new leader appeared in the doubles today: Walter Selle and Joe Spanich of Rock Island, Ill. They rolled 1342, or seven points better than the preceding first placers, Harvey Brantz and Louis Strizzi of Cleveland.

Selle knocked down 289, highest single game so far in the tournament, and finished his three-game series with 709.

The next best performance was 1284, which netted fifth place in the doubles for Carl Baumgartner and Hugh Stewart of Cincinnati. Baumgartner won the singles crown in 1923 with 724 and Stewart was all-events titlist in 1932 with 1980.

Meanwhile, the ABC office announced that 900 teams had made reservations for the 1943 tournament in Buffalo, N. Y.

REILLY FIVE TOPS MCKINLEY BY 20-19

Mid the excited cheering of their respective rooters, McKinley and Reilly opened their playoff series for the Mickey McGuire league title last night at the Memorial building with the Reilly cagers winning, 20 to 19.

Both teams played fine defensive ball throughout the contest as the score will testify. Foul shots decided the game as the McKinleyites tallied one more two-pointer than the Reilly five. Reilly converted four out of 10 free tosses while the Cleveland st. team could do no better than one out of nine.

Hanna and Tommy Miner paced the winners with eight and five points, respectively, while Tommy Mayhew and Cain featured for McKinley with eight and seven, respectively.

The second game of the series will be played Monday night at the Memorial building and the McKinley outfit will now be faced with the tough task of winning two straight from the Reilly cagers to win the title.

JAPANESE ATTACK ON SIBERIA LOOMS

Advantages, If Successful, Would Offset Dangers Of Venture

itative estimates put Japan's current strength in the south Pacific now at a minimum of 10 and a maximum of 15 divisions—225,000 men at most—and say that only four of these, three in Burma and one split between Java and New Guinea—are actively in the field.

These divisions form only a small part of the Japanese army, mobilized since 1937 from a nation of 70,000,000 or more.

Air and sea power have been the chief factors in Japan's southern progress, military men say, and with air and sea control she does not need large land forces to hold her gains.

While that is accomplished by stages through the summer, one military observer commented, a force of 10 Japanese divisions could move against Siberia.

"Once the northern air frontier is secured," he said, "Japan can move westward against India or southward against Australia."

Russia sources, who are optimistic over the Red army's chances of "finishing" the Germans in 1942, are silent when a possible Japanese attack in the east is mentioned.

The Russians, like the Germans, informed sources say, are fearful of a war on two fronts.
